

B4SA: Weekly Update 21 September 2021

This week's highlights

- Massive vaccination weekend planned
- Interfaith body campaign to vaccinate congregants
- Caution about vaccine passport phishing scam

A note from Martin Kingston

Dear B4SA and business colleagues,

Last night we reached three milestones in the vaccination numbers with 16 million, or 20% of South Africa's adults fully vaccinated, and just under 30% having received a jab. To get to 70% vaccinated by Christmas, however, we need to vaccinate 17 million more, and NDoH modelling suggests that if we can achieve that, we can save 20,000 lives.

This will require a massive push from all sectors of society, but when we consider how many lives widespread vaccination will save, it will be well worth the effort. It's clear that we must continue to do everything we can to keep the daily vaccination rate up and preferably get it above the 300,000-a-day mark.

The planned #VaxuMzansi initiative by the multi-faith Religious Forum Against COVID-19 is an example for the rest of society: multiple faith leaders will be coming together to encourage their congregations to vaccinate, and collaborating with pharmacies to do so. We applaud the initiative, and ask those of you who are part of faith communities to actively support the campaign in any way you can.

In addition, the NDoH has planned the first "Vooma Vaccination Weekend" from 1-3 October, with a nationwide call for South Africans from every sector to come together and turn up at vaccination sites in numbers. A variety of events are planned for the day, more details of which will be released in the near future, and we call on all of the private sector sites to participate fully where appropriate to do so.

B4SA NEWS

Interfaith body launches vaccination campaign

The Religious Forum Against COVID-19 will be launching its #VaxuMzansi campaign with a National Vaccine Day on Heritage Day, 24 September.

The campaign aims for religious bodies across the spectrum to vaccinate up to 70% of their congregations and the communities in which they serve, and to play an active role in increasing vaccine uptake.

Participating religious communities across the country will host vaccine information drives and include pop-up sites at select locations, inviting their congregations and communities to vaccinate.

The #VaxuMzansi campaign will use many methods to reach religious communities – from prayer sessions and religious services to encouraging congregants to get the jab in their cultural/ religious/ traditional attire, celebrating diversity while standing in solidarity in the fight against the virus.

Vooma Vaccination Weekend loading

The first Vooma Vaccination Weekend will be happening on 1-3 October, with a national call to action from every sector of South Africa.

Covid-19 compliant events will be held in municipal districts across the country, led by the president, premiers and mayors, who will be joined by sports personalities, musicians and other celebrities to drive a single message: that we can save 20,000 lives if we vaccinate 70% of adults by the end of the year.

To support the drive, vaccination sites across both the private and public sectors will be open on the Friday and Saturday, and members of the public who are as yet unvaccinated will be encouraged to visit their nearest sites and get jabbed.

The NDoH will also be recognising high-performing sites and healthcare workers for their dedication and hard work with a series of awards.

Vaccine passport phishing scam warming

The Western Cape Department of Health has issued a warning that a phishing scam is doing the rounds related to the "vaccination passport". Email recipients are informed that their vaccination passports are ready and asked to click on a link to confirm their personal information.

The department issued a circular saying that digital vaccine certificates, aka vaccine passports, are not ready yet, although they may be available from the end of September. Even when they are, however, recipients will not be asked to click on a link to enter personal details.

Anyone in receipt of such an email should delete it.
